Android setsupportactionbar( toolbar error

In Android Toolbar is similar to a ActionBar (now called App Bars). Toolbar is a Viewgroup that can be placed anywhere in the layout. We can easily replace an action bar with toolbar. Toolbar was introduced in Material Design in API level 21 (Android 5.0 i.e Lollipop). Material Design brings a lot of new features in Android that has changed a lot of visual design models regarding design of modern Android applications. An action bar is traditionally a part of a window opaque activity controlled by the picture, but a toolbar can be placed at any level of nesting within a view hierarchy. Toolbar provides more ActionBar features. A toolbar may contain a combination of elements from start to finish. Important note: The toolbar is more flexible than ActionBar. We can easily change its color, size and location. We can also add labels, logos, navigation icons and other views in it. In Material Design Android updated the AppCompatActivity libraries so that we can use Toolbar in our devices running API Level 7 and up. In AppCompatActivity, Toolbar is implemented in `android.support.v7.widget.Toolbar` class. Define the design support library: To use Toolbar you need to add the design support library under construction. The gradle file. > build.gradle (Module:App) -> in dependencies compile `com.android.support.design:24.1.1` // design support Library Toolbar Elements In Android: In Android Toolbar has more features than ActionBar and we can easily replace awith Toolbar. In the toolbar from start to finish can contain a combination of elements. Below we describe each element of the toolbar. Navigation button: It can be a navigation menu, arrow up, near, done, collapse or any other glyph of the choice of the application. Brand Logo Image: It can extend to the height of the toolbar and can be arbitrarily wide. Title and Subtitle: A title should be a sign for the current location of the navigation hierarchy of the toolbar and content contained. Subtitle represents any information extended to current content. If an application uses a logo, then it should strongly consider the omission of a title and subtitle. One or more personalized views: An application can add arbitrary views of children to the toolbar. If the child's view toolbar. LayoutParams indicates CENTER_HORIZONTAL Gravity then the view will try to center within the remaining available space in the toolbar after all other elements have been measured. Action menu: The Actions menu will be at the end of the Toolbar that offers some important, typical or frequent actions along with an optional overflow menu for additional actions. The action buttons are aligned vertically within the minimum height of the toolbar when set. Base Toolbar XML code:
